The Paris Citizen of yesterday publishes an account of the recent rebel rally. It says that on Sunday morning last a force of rebel cavalry, estimated at seven hundred to two thousand strong, entered Richmond, Ky., having crossed the Cumberland River two days before, at or near Mill Springs, in Wayne county. Their sudden appearance at Richmond was rather unexpected, but the citizens, though the military seemed to have been on the alert. Three companies of Federal troops who were stationed there destroyed the whole of the Government stores in the place, that they could not carry with them, and fell back to Lexington. The rebels nearly long at Richmond, but pushed rapidly forward toward Lexington. They crossed the Kentucky river, about 12 o'clock on Sunday night, at Clay's Ferry and Boonboro, and took the road for Winchester, which place they reached on Monday morning, and left in the afternoon in the direction of Mt. Sterling.

The Federal forces, some 2,000 strong, were only a few hours behind them when they reached Mt. Sterling. Mr. Williams, the command of 100 to 150 of the 14th Kentucky cavalry, fell back from Mt. Sterling to Paris, bringing in eight prisoners. They burned all their stores, tents, &c. They started away with eighteen wagons, seventeen of them were captured by the rebels and one arrived here safely. The wagons were returned by the rebels on Wednesday, and returned to Mt.
Sterling.

A skirmish took place near Athens on Monday night, in which Dr. Theophilus Steele, son-in-law of Dr. R. J. Breckinridge, on the rebel side, was severely wounded, having been shot in the breast, and Chariton Crawford, brother to John, with others, were taken prisoners.

The various bands of rebels now in Kentucky are under the command of Col. Chenault, Tucker, and Clarke. Chenault is a former resident of Madison county, and Tucker is a native of Winchester. Clarke lives in Clark county, about six miles from Paris, and was a Dragoon General. Of course the leaders are entirely familiar with the country.

The HARRIET LANE.—The New Orleans correspondent of the New York World recently stated that it was confidently believed at Richmond that the steamer Harriet Lane had escaped from Galveston, and that it rests on the authority of A. D. Holland, one of the Confederate boarding officers, who says "Leon Smith, who is a brother of Caleb B. Smith, Lincoln's late Secretary of War, and who is now in charge of the harbor on the morning of January 19th." We doubt this intelligence when we read it, and our doubts are confirmed by the National Intelligencer, which says the fact of the escape of the Harriet Lane rests on no better evidence than the news we now have to be mythe, patriotic and distinguished Caleb B. Smith, of Indiana, having, but one brother, Mr. Thomas B. Smith, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

There have been very heavy rains recently in the vicinity of Nashville. The Dispatch, of Friday, says that the two bridges over Mill Creek, on the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, were washed away on Thursday. It will require three or four days to rebuild them. The heavy rain has also flooded the country in many places, and it is quite probable a great amount of damage has been done. The Blackwater covered the bottom lands about Nashville on Thursday, reaching almost the level of Cherry street at the treble-work. It began to recede about 8 in the morning, and in a few hours had fallen some two feet.

DAMAGE TO THE NASHVILLE RAILROAD.—We learn from the Nashville Dispatch that the Nashville and Nashville Railroad, was injured on Thursday by the high water to such an extent as to render it unsafe for the train that left Louisville that day to attempt a crossing. A train was sent up for the mails and passengers, which had returned to Nashville at 10 o'clock Thursday night.

One hundred sick Federal soldiers, from the hospital in this city, will be dispatched to Chicago, Illinois, this afternoon.

A DESTRUCTIVE INDIAN WAR.

GRAT SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 1, 1863.

Our Indian war is now ending, and is destructive. Though Col. Connor, cavalry, I came, I saw, I conquered, I may report, I vanquished, I fought, I conquered, I exterminated, for such, indeed, was the fact.

It appears that the Indians, said to be a mixture of Panos and Klamath, numbered estimated to number from 200 to 300, had chosen a position on the north side of Bear River, in a ravine, filled with brush, where the stream runs to the river, where the stream forms a bend, the immediate location of the savages being four or five hundred yards from the river. They must have been very confident, or they would not have been in their stronghold.

Col. Connor and his command arrived before the Indian camp last Thursday morning, a portion of the troops crossing the river where the Indians were encamped. The warrior was fifteen miles north of the extreme northern settlement in Cache Valley.
The mode of battle, which continued three four hours, is represented as follows: A cavalry charge to the brow of the ravine; the Indians in the brush, who were picking up the troops; cavalry fled it difficult to descend ravine, so are repulsed; a foot charge to the brow of the ravine, repulsed; the troops change into the brush, and fighting, Indians run toward the river, met by troops, many Indians mostly killed, troops victorious.

It is difficult to obtain the exact number of the slain. One man was killed after the strife, visited the battlefield after the strife, and counted 25 dead Indians, of whom ten were squaws. Of the Indians in the Northwest, we are supposed to have been.

Of the officers of the volunteers, Capt. Mc-Leary was wounded in the right arm, and Lieut. H. C. Gallagher in the right arm, and Capt. Berry in the right shoulder. Lieut.
Darwin Chase was seriously wounded, and it is reported that he has since died.

A number of the volunteers were also frost-bit in their feet and toes. The volunteers arrived on Monday and Tuesday. The volunteers (Connor and the chief portion of his command, and some Indian panos and other troops, were sent to the city this afternoon.

Dr. Keel, William and Stead attended on the wounded. The Indians evidently suffered from the cold, and many of them were hit in the lungs or other parts of the body.

A special dispatch to the Commercial from Indianapolis says: The withdrawal of the bill from the House on Wednesday has, perhaps, put an end to further legislation this session. But two of the bills have gone home. The House was an attempt to pass an unconstitutional measure to strip the Governor of all military power.

The Kentucky House of Representatives yesterday voted on the report of the Committee on the subject of the bill to strip the Governor of all military power. They rejected the report by a decided vote but accepted the resolutions.

It is said that certain parties are preparing charges against Hunter, and that a bill will be introduced in the House with a view to his removal.

On Wednesday night two rebel cavalry brigades, Fitzhugh Lee and Hampton's, attempted to make a raid into our lines. They crossed the Appomattox at Kelly's Ford, and succeeded in a strong attack in breaking our third line of cavalry outposts at one or two places. The rebels killed a few of our men, but our outposts were reestablished, and a force sent in pursuit.

Our cavalry included two or three commissioned officers. The rebels failed in accomplishing their object and returned in great haste across the Appomattox, leaving traces of their passage in the mud and blood.

A special dispatch to the Commercial from Indianapolis says: The withdrawal of the bill from the House on Wednesday has, perhaps, put an end to further legislation this session. But two of the bills have gone home. The House was an attempt to pass an unconstitutional measure to strip the Governor of all military power.

The Kentucky House of Representatives yesterday voted on the report of the Committee on the subject of the bill to strip the Governor of all military power. They rejected the report by a decided vote but accepted the resolutions.

New York, Feb. 26.
The Herald says that rumors were rife in Washington yesterday that Hunter is to be relieved from the command of the Department of the South. Hunter's name is a spoke in the wheel of the administration.

It is said that certain parties are preparing charges against Hunter, and that a bill will be introduced in the House with a view to his removal.
